

Important Reasons For Management and Professional Liability Coverage

Employment Practices Liability Insurance

Competition is tough and companies have to constantly examine expenses including their business insurance. Some companies may even consider going without coverage to save some money. However, going without these important insurance coverages can cost you more than you think. Here's why:

1. Studies show, an employer is more likely to have an EPL claim than a GL or Property loss.*

Claims for sexual harassment, wrongful termination, and discrimination (age, sex, race, pay, etc.) continue to be on the rise which means you face the chance of your business being the target of legal action. Almost 75% of all litigation against corporations today involves employment disputes. Every year, between 77,000 and 81,000 charges are filed against employers under statutes enforced by the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission, and the majority of those claims are brought against companies with fewer than 100 employees.**

2. Your current business liability insurance may not cover employment liability claims.

Business liability policies generally have a standard exclusion (CG 21 47) for employment practices liability exposures. Some business package policies offer limited coverage and reduced limits which may be inadequate to meet the needs of your particular business.

3. Insurance can help protect your assets.

Based on our estimates, the average cost of a claim against a smaller company is around $50,000 when payment is made to the plaintiff. Keep in mind that even frivolous claims cost you time and money to defend yourself. EPL insurance covers companies and individuals for loss (damages and defense costs) arising out of employment practice disputes. Common claims allege discrimination, sexual harassment, wrongful termination, and wrongful discipline.
